

The brief lands Monday. The shoot is Thursday. Your travel should keep up.

Media agencies and production companies live in fast-moving briefs and last-minute shoots. Three people need flights, one needs a different hotel, and the client is paying for two of them — not the third. Managing this over WhatsApp and a shared Amex leads to billing disputes, missed reimbursements, and a finance team that's stopped trying to reconcile production travel accurately.

WHAT IT'S COSTING YOU

- ⊗ Last-minute bookings at premium rates
inflated production costs on every campaign
- ⊗ Client-billable vs. agency travel mixed billing disputes, write-offs, and finance friction
- ⊗ Multiple campaigns with no spend separation
impossible to report accurately per project
- ⊗ Freelancers on personal cards
slow reimbursement and incomplete records

WHAT CHANGES WITH BIZAWAY

- ✔ Project-coded booking
Every booking assigned to a client or campaign at point of booking. Finance gets a clean split of billable vs. internal travel — automatically.
- ✔ BizzyFlex for production
Creative briefs change. Shoots get postponed. Cancel any booking up to 3 hours before — 80% refund, no penalty. The platform moves as fast as your briefs do.
- ✔ Freelancer & contractor access
Grant temporary platform access to freelancers on a specific project. They book within your policy — their costs flow into your reporting.
- ✔ Multi-traveller group bookings
Book for the entire crew in one session. Flights, hotels, transfers — one booking reference, one invoice line.
- ✔ 24/7 TED Support
A production coordinator needs to rebook six people because the client pushed the shoot 24 hours. TED handles it — whatever time it is.

80% back.
